Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claims 1-7, as written, do not sufficiently distinguish over antibodies as they exist naturally because the claims do not particularly point out any non-naturally occurring differences between the claimed products and the naturally occurring products. For example, claims are drawn to an antibody, a cell growth inhibitor comprising an antibody, and an anti-cancer agent comprising an antibody, however, the claims as written do not particularly distinguish that the antibody is in any way manipulated from its natural state. For example, the claim reads on an antibody as it exists naturally in the body. In the absence of the hand of man, the naturally occurring products are considered non-statutory subject matter. See Diamond v.

Chakrabarty, 447 U.S. 303, 206 USPQ 193 (1980). The claims should be amended to indicate the hand of the inventor See MPEP 2105.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Basu et al (Pharmaceutical Research 1998; 15(2):338-342 -- IDS 10/22/04 #BG) or Basu et al (Pharmaceutical Research 1996; 19(9Suppl):S-37, Abstract No. APQ 1137 -- IDS 9/27/06 #AK). Basu et al teach an anti-PepT1 antibody. They also teach the administration or contacting of the antibody in the Cell ELISA assay as well as in Western Blotting (see page 339, for example). Although the cited references do not specifically teach that the antibody is capable of inhibiting transport activity or of suppressing the growth of cancer cells (or specifically pancreatic cancer cells), the claimed invention only requires contacting of the antibody with cells that express the peptide transporter. Moreover, the office does not have the facilities and resources to provide the factual evidence needed in order to establish that the product of the prior art does not possess the same material, structural and functional characteristics of the claimed product. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the burden is on the applicant to prove that the claimed product is different from those taught by the prior art and to establish patentable differences. See In re Best 562 F.2d 1252, 195 USPQ 430 (CCPA 1977) and Ex parte Gray 10 USPQ 2d 1922 (PTO Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1989).

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-15 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-14 of copending Application No. 10/497,900. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims of the co-pending application encompass an antibody that binds to PepT1 and or compositions comprising an antibody that binds to PepT1 as currently claimed. In addition, the claims of the co-pending application also comprise claims drawn to methods of contacting with an antibody.

Art Unit: 1643

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.
